NOTICE OF DISSOLUTION OF CO-PARTNERSHIP.

NOTICE IS GIVEN HEREBY THAT THE co-partnership heretofore existing between E. D. Kelley and W. Webster in the master of the ownership and publication of the NEVADA STATE JOURNAL has been dissolved. W. Webster having become sole owner of the property and paper. By the transfer of the property all demands due the paper and late co-partnership are the property of said Webster, and demands owing by the paper and late co-partnership are assumed by said Webster and will be paid by him.
E. D. KELLEY,
W. WEBSTER.
November 25, 1898.

The bud is more easily blighted than the full-blown rose. A young girl is more susceptible to weakness and disease that will wreck her in a womanly way than she is after she has attained to healthy womanhood. Thousands of women have their lives wrecked by troubles of this delicate description, because of their own ignorance and the prudence of their mothers.

Whenever the wandering demon of death finds a ship adrift upon the sea of ignorance, he steps on board, takes the helm, and steers straight for the maelstrom of death. The young woman who has not been taught the necessity of taking care of her health in a womanly way is a ship adrift upon the sea of ignorance. Diseases that will wreck her future happiness will soon assume command. Young women who suffer from weakness and disease peculiar to their sex live under a terrible nervous tension, and if they escape death are always threatened with insanity. The whole nervous system is affected by the constant drag and drain upon the delicate and feminine organs. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the one perfect and unfailing specific for every derangement and disorder of this description. It fits a woman for wifehood and motherhood. It is the best of all known nerve tonics. It is the discovery of one of the most eminent and skillful specialists in disease of women.

"I was troubled three years with female weakness," writes Miss Ellen Oley, of Bedford City, Bedford Co., Va. "I had two physicians, but neither did me any good. I was troubled with pains in my left side all the time. When it was time for my monthly periods I thought I would die with pain in my back and stomach. I also had chills. I could not get on without fainting. Finally I took three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and two of his Golden Medical Discovery. I do not have any pains at all and am in better health now than I ever was in my life."

How to preserve health and beauty are told in Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser. It is free. For a paper-covered copy send at one-cent stamps, to cover mailing only; cloth binding, 31 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Wildcat on Toast.
There is no accounting for tastes. What suits the palate of one may be little esteemed by another. An English traveler and sportsman had recommended to him when he was in Morocco a variety of game which he would not be very keen for at home. His informant was a soldier, for no foreigner is allowed to travel in that country without such attendance.

He began telling marvelous stories of the game in the neighborhood, of the sultan's army and of his own importance. One remark on cooking—for he was a gourmand—is worth repeating.

"There is," he said, "only one kind of game worth eating in Morocco—wildcat. Its taste is as the taste of all other varieties of game mixed. When once you have tasted wildcat, never will you eat anything again with pleasure." Probably not. I should think it enough to poison most people, but I dared not say so. I merely owned in a weak voice that I preferred owl stewed with mustard and sand. He said that ought to be good, too, but he had never tried it.

Why He Didn't Swear.
On the night of the "harbor fete" at Newport John Kendrick Bangs and his little boy stood near a group of army officers and ladies. One of the torches illuminating the parapet went out during the evening. A girl in the group said the light next to the darkened one should be put out, too, as it looked lonely without its mate. One of the young officers at once acted upon her suggestion, but in extinguishing the torch burned his finger. He bit his lips and said nothing. Mr. Bangs' small son looked on in astonishment. "Papa," he said, "isn't that man an officer?"

"Yes."
"Then, papa, why didn't he swear?"
"Because, my son," said the father, "he is either a chaplain or a second lieutenant. If a chaplain, it would not be proper for him to do so, and if a second lieutenant he does not know how."
—Argonaut.

Wanted Results.
"H'm!" said the policeman. "I guess well have to investigate this."
"No, sir," exclaimed the cynical citizen whose house had been broken into. "I don't want any investigation. What I want is for you to jump in and find out in a hurry who did it."—Washington Star.

PEOPLE'S BURDEN AND PERILS.

Mr. Hanna says that the tariff must be revised, and that quickly. The great ringmasters of the Administration frankly admit that taxes must be increased because of new conditions. In other words, our war and the "fruits" thereof, must be paid for. The great nation is to expand in territory and glory, but the people must stand the cost. Vast wealth is supposed to come to us from Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines and Cuba, but the burdens of life for the average citizen are not to be lightened. Is anything said about the distribution of wealth among the people? Do we hear anything about an increase in wages or a reduction in the cost of living? Not a word. Mr. Hanna announces that the war taxes are to be retained as well as the high protective policy (which only protects the monopolies and trusts) and that a duty must be put on tea and coffee. On the very next day after this declaration of Mr. Hanna's policy, the sugar trust advanced the price of sugar one-eighth of a cent per pound.

So while Mr. Hanna is preparing to make permanent a portion of the war taxes, the trusts are using the power conferred upon them by the Government, to still further rob the people.

Mr. Dingley does not agree with Mr. Hanna. He does not favor tariff discussion during the short session this winter. One year hence he will, if given his own way, bring in a draft of a new tariff bill, which if passed, will become operative in the summer or fall of 1900. Upon that measure, the Republican party will appeal to the country by renouncing McKinley. So it looks as though the extraordinary war revenue measures could remain in force for nearly two years longer.

There is a significant feature of both Hanna's and Dingley's public declarations. Each concedes the fact that the Dingley tariff bill, with its high protective features, does not and cannot produce adequate revenue for the Government even in the time of peace. If there had been no war the deficit would have been the same. There has not been a single month that the Dingley Act has produced adequate revenue to run the Government, and to cover up the inadequacy of its revenue producer Mr. Dingley will, if Hanna permits, continue the war taxes for an indefinite period of time.

But what are the people going to do about it? They have voted to sustain Hanna, Dingley and the trusts in the policy of extortion. They have given carte blanche to the Administration to seize foreign territory, to increase the army and navy and to levy taxes for their support, without even the pretense that the common people are to receive a particle of benefit, or that their interests are to be considered in any other manner than that they will be gaily permitted to pay the cost. If they surrender their liberties and their power over their own affairs to the monopolies and syndicates, they must expect to be robbed, for that is the business of the monopolists and syndicates. Some day they may awaken to the fact that they have been lured by Hanna and his gang of bribers and slave drivers; but the awakening will come too late. If they permit these bloodsuckers to centralize power on the executive branch of the Government, it will be employed later on to enforce obedience and subjection to the will and the rule of the plutocrats, who are represented by such men as Hanna and Dingley.

A WORD WITH THE "JOURNAL."

The Reno JOURNAL asks the Appeal why it supported Nixon against Jones two years ago, after Jones was endorsed by the people and if it was done with the idea of "making Jones put up."

The Appeal editor some years ago was placed under very great obligations by Hon. Geo. Nixon and at the time recognizing the right of these obligations, he told Mr. Nixon that if he ever needed any political assistance from the Appeal or its editor he could depend upon it.

Two years ago in his Senatorial candidacy he called upon the writer to make good his word.

The reply was: "I do not think you can win this fight, but I will make good my word."

The writer fully realized the hopelessness of Mr. Nixon's fight, but he made good his word to Mr. Nixon as he would do again under the same circumstances.

In the campaign two years ago the Appeal, or its editor, either directly or indirectly, did not receive a dollar from Senator Jones for supporting him in the State campaign, nor did it ask it, then or at any other time.

If the JOURNAL editor wishes to be further enlightened on the subject he is referred to Hon. John P. Jones, Carson Appeal.

The JOURNAL cannot understand the code of morals, or obligations of friendship which would cause an honorable man to do a dishonorable act to oblige a friend to whom he was under personal obligations. We hope that we have no friend who would expect that kind of reciprocity from us, and the Appeal editor will pardon us for the expression of the belief that he is mistaken in his inference that the editor of the Silver State ever requested him to do anything which would arouse the parings of remorse in the conscience of the editor of the Appeal.

We thought at the time that it was wrong in Mr. Nixon in presenting himself as a candidate against a man who had received such indorsement by the people as had Senator John P. Jones. This, while we admit that perhaps the people of Nevada would have been no losers if our Winnemucca friend had succeeded in his aspiration.

It is a well known fact, however, that a very different motive was ascribed to the Appeal editor's course than that of personal friendship to anybody, and he was assailed as he is now assailing others as "leg pullers" whose only motive was to blackmail Senator Jones.

The Appeal gives us another reason, or excuse for its course, the fact that he never received a dollar from Senator Jones for supporting him. If that is a valid reason, the JOURNAL can go it a good deal better, by stating that so far as the present management know, it did not receive from Senator Stewart half the cost of the type setting that was done in his behalf and at his special instance and request, as will be conclusively proven by a statement of the entire transactions between Mr. Stewart and the JOURNAL before and during the campaign, which the firm of Webster & Son feel constrained to make in the near future, in justice to themselves and because of the false statements made by Stewart which have been going the rounds of his subsidized press since the change of ownership of this paper.

THE CYCLONE.

How This Wonderful and Destructive Air Fury Is Formed.

To get an idea of a cyclone's formation imagine a large circular pan or tub with quite a large hole in the middle of the bottom. With this hole plugged, fill the vessel with water; then draw out the plug and watch. There is first a rush of water from all directions toward the hole and a turbulent effort to get through. Then the water surface above begins to sink and swirl, the particles gradually circling around and around and rushing, ever faster, toward the center. At last there is actually a hollow space through the center, around which all the water in the tub is whirling, sluggishly near the rim, but with more and more violent rapidity toward the middle until it rushes downward through the bottom. Now, if that water were air, you would be watching a little cyclone turned upside down, for the air rushes upward instead of downward.

In the cradle of cyclones during the summer months, when the land and the water grow hotter and hotter because of the longer days than nights, a layer of air, hot, light and full of vapor, is for a time held down by denser air above it. Restless, expanding, tumultuous, it moves about like a beast at bay until a thinner place in the air above is found. Then up it madly rushes and into the vacuum left behind the lower atmosphere hastens from all directions, pushing and twisting and pouring upward until it has fallen into a regular spinning around a common center.

The cyclone, once formed, rushes away from the tropics toward the pole, and begins its career of destruction, bruising, wrecking and sinking the luckless ships which happen to be in its path. More and more of the surrounding atmosphere is drawn into the whirl until the storm often covers an area nearly 1,000 miles in diameter. Sometimes it flings itself upon our Atlantic coast and tears fiercely through forests, fields and cities. Then again it sweeps away across the broad ocean and dashes itself upon the coasts of Europe. Once in awhile it so adroitly avoids the land that we never know it has passed until ships come in torn and broken.—St. Nicholas.

BACKBONE OF OUR NATION.

The Brain Power of Our Country Comes From the Farm.

"It is from the farm and the country districts that the great brain power of the country has come, is coming today and must come in the future," writes Edward Bok in The Ladies' Home Journal. "Instead of deprecating country life and saying that 'to live in the country means to live out of the world,' intelligent people know that the free, untrammelled life of the country unquestionably gives broader views. The human mind always grows to suit its outward surroundings. Originality and development for great things have naught to check its growth where one can look with earnest eyes from nature up to nature's God. To speak of 'the ignorance of the rural regions' is to stamp oneself as an ignoramus, not the country people. There is a soundness of core and an intelligence in the back country of this nation of ours that people who live in cities and think themselves wise never suspect. We can talk all we like of 'social revolutions' and kindred evils that are supposed to threaten this nation. When they do threaten our institutions, the danger signal will not come from the back country. Such thoughts are born and fed amid the foul atmosphere of the cities. In the clear country air of the farm nothing threatens this country, and when anything in the shape of a socialist, anarchistic revolution does menace this land the true voice which will stamp it out will come from the country. The backbone of this land rests in the country and on the farm."

AGENTS TO BURN HERETICS.

Were requests for the purpose of buying these at all common? One such was left (I speak from memory) by the widow of a city freeman, who bequeathed a tenement, the rent of which was to be applied for the purchase of fagots for the aforesaid purpose. For many years I believe the rent went into the pockets of the parochial clergy. It is now applied for the purchase of coals for the poor, "to warm their bodies instead of burning them," as it was wittily said.—Notes and Queries.

TO THE POINT.

A young foreigner had recently arrived in London from his native country, and some friends of his family arranged a dinner in his honor. The evening arrived, the guests invited to meet him were assembled, but the young fellow did not appear. A friend called on him the next day and reminding him that he had accepted the invitation, inquired why he had not been present. His reply was ingenious.

"I was not hungry," he said.—London Telegraph.

A Cemetery For Old Clothes.

In the north of London there is a little plot of ground where old clothes are buried and afterward exhumed for a curious purpose. It is a flat, barren and desolate piece of ground and presents a very melancholy spectacle. Little wooden stumps, bearing numbers, mark the graves.

There is a paper mill near by, which finds it rather difficult to get suitable material for the manufacture of a special paper.

The ordinary old rags are no good. The rags themselves have to be manufactured. Old coats, old trousers and old dresses are covered with wet soil, and after a few weeks' rotting are exhumed.

A corner is set aside for old linen goods. The linen is placed in layers in a box, with soft rich soil between each layer, and then buried.

Lime-water is then sprinkled over the grave, and after a fortnight's rotting the linen is reduced to a mere skeleton, which is taken out of the box, laid flat in a warm blanket and rushed off to the paper mill.

Though it is only the size of a football ground, it contains 2,000 graves, which are marked by 2,000 wooden stumps, each bearing a number.

Women's Sense of Color.

The differences between men and women are well marked in many ways, but it may not be generally known how great this difference is in the matter of color appreciation, not to speak of color blindness. A large percentage of men are impervious to the sensation of color; they neither notice nor appreciate it. Women, on the contrary, like many animals, are strongly attracted and repelled by color, which to the average male mind remains a mystery. The ordinary man is quite satisfied if his help-mate dresses in black or in the proverbially agreeable white muslin. Why she should seek for harmonies and novelties of color, why she should arrange and match and discuss various hues with the seriousness he would give to a business matter, passes his understanding.

And just as color leaves a man cold, so does form a woman, which accounts for her indifference to statuary and her frequent incapacity for drawing. Louisa, marchioness of Waterford, was an instance of this. Her coloring was superb and the envy of artists, her drawing defective and poor, and when she tried late in life to learn to draw she only succeeded in spoiling her fine instinct for color.—London Graphic.

Mulberry Sellers.

One day while Mark Twain and Charles Dudley Warner were walking together they happened to begin a discussion of the modern novel, and one of the other suggested that it might be a good plan to burlesque it. Later while journeying together to Boston this suggestion took definite shape, and on their return the work was begun, one author writing a chapter, the other taking up the threads of the story the next day, and both critically examining the result each evening and asking the opinions of their wives as to the success of each stage of the undertaking. Finally they collected all the manuscript, of which there was too great a quantity, and jointly condensed it. It was owing to a suggestion by Mr. Warner that the chief character in the tale was called Colonel Echol Sellers, and it is a fact that the man whose name was taken—a man supposed to be long dead—made a fiery demand for satisfaction, visiting Hartford for that purpose. In later editions of the story the name "Echol" was changed to "Mulberry."

How She Got Her Name.

Mrs. Dayton of Highland Park had just engaged a new cook. The addition to the servants looked promising as she came in arrayed in all her finery and waited for "the missus" to talk with her before going to work.

"What is your name?" asked Mrs. Dayton.

"Lay-ourie, ma'am," said the culinary expert.

"Lay-ourie!" exclaimed the lady of the house. "What a peculiar name! I never heard it before in my life. Is that a nickname or was it given you when you were christened?"

"It's my real name," said "Lay-ourie." "I've gone by it all my life."

"How in the world did you come to have it?" was asked.

"My mother got it out of a novel," said "Lay-ourie."

Mrs. Dayton finally asked her to write it. After much hard work the owner of the name wrote out in a cramped hand, "L-a-u-r-a."

"Why, that's pronounced 'Laura,'" said Mrs. Dayton.

"Well, I don't know about that, ma'am," said the new cook. "My ma never heard it before, and she called it 'Lay-ourie.' I've been 'Lay-ourie' for 37 years, and I guess now it's too late to make a change."

So "Lay-ourie" she remained.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE State of Nevada, Second Judicial District, In the Matter of the Estate of } Notice.

C. C. Powning, Deceased. }
Notice is hereby given that the undersigned has been appointed administratrix of the estate of the above-named deceased, and having duly qualified as such, letters of administration on said estate have been duly issued to her on this, the sixth day of December, 1893.

Notice is further given that all persons having claims against the said estate of C. C. Powning, deceased, must present them to the Clerk of the above-entitled Court, within sixty days from the first publication of this notice, or they will be forever barred.

CLARA A. POWNING,
Administratrix of the Estate of C. C. Powning, Deceased.
Dated at Reno, Nevada, this 6th day of December, 1893.

NOTICE TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

KNOW YE THAT J. V. PEERS ON THIS 6th day of December 1893, under the authority of this State, in such case made and provided, presented his written application to the Second Judicial District Court of the State of Nevada, held in and for Washoe County, to be relieved of the future of his present office of Public Administrator and ex-officio Coroner of Washoe County, and of the same offices to which he was elected at the general election held on the 6th day of November, 1892, and of all pains and penalties under what is generally known as the Purvis Election Law of this State, approved March 13, 1892, on account of his failure to file the itemized statement to said office and the affidavit thereto required by section 3 of said law, which failure is shown by sufficient evidence, prima facie, to have been through inadvertence and excusable neglect, and not by reason of any want of good faith on the part of said applicant.

Now, therefore, said application will be heard by said Court on Saturday, December 10, 1893, at the courtroom of said Court at 10 o'clock A. M. of said day, on proof of the notice of such hearing required by said Court.

Done by order of the Court, this 6th day of December, 1893.
